This might feel like a slow week, but you'll need to plan wisely. This weekend is packed with big events that span all day or more.

Esther Ruiz: Static Limit

The first time I saw Esther Ruiz's work, I was blown away by her dreamy neon and mixed-media sculptures that feel world-building no matter their scale. In Static Limit, editions of her oddly-shaped neon-and-plexiglass black mirrors will orbit a freestanding sculpture in the center of the gallery, recalling the "static limit" at the edge of a black hole's gravitational field. That sounds heady, but trust us, the result will be something beautiful and sleek that still feels playful and idiosyncratic.
