36. “Rachel Hecker: Exhibition Title Goes Here” at yours mine & ours

In her first New York solo show, Rachel Hecker brings new importance to mundane objects, carefully rendering cigarette butts, garden gnomes, and expiration date stickers while painting with an airbrush tool. This absurdity carries over to her chapel-like installation venerating a celebrity version of Jesus Christ, featuring paintings of the deity inspired by representations of rock stars.

54 Eldridge Street, September 10–October 22, 2017; opening reception 6 p.m.–8 p.m.
